Project Manager (Prevention Of Human Trafficking Through The Community Mobilization)

Job Responsibility & project -: We focuses on the importance of local communities in the fight against human trafficking and encourages state governments to support and empower their partners on the ground. It undersources how local context and a dynamic policy framework are integral components of any anti-trafficking strategy and highlights the opportunities state goverments have to facilitate coordination, cooperation, and responsibility sharing with and between local goverments and communities. It is important to make them understand,however,that despite its pernicious global sweep,human trafficking mostly happens in local communities – in a saloonor hotel , restaurants, in a neighbour’s home, on a farm, or in a village’s streets, city’s streetstraffickers reap profits from the exploitation of others,leaving individual victims and their local communities to face the consequences.

Raising awareness among those professionals and community members likely to come into contact with our organization for developing processes and protocols for an effective,victim-centered response, Local communities actually have the most to contribute toward lasting sollutions. It is communities that are most familiar with local human trafficking trends and that have the greatest stake in their own safekeeping, which makes them both powerful and necessary forces in the right against modern slavery. We therefore mobilize and support local communities to expect output but it will also enhance critical prevention efforts in this global fight.
