About Me

Working with an advertisement company for more than a year gave me a lot of exposure in term of people and client management. I believe I have learnt best how to work with and manage clients when it comes to marketing the service.

What amazes me most about my work is the creativity and innovation involved with a touch of psychology to add the personal touch for clients to maintain the relationships.

Further I want to pursue a role where I can put my management and marketing skills to their best use while exchanging all there is to between me and the organization.
